To the Reader.

COVRTEOVS Reader, I may seeme to some over bold in setting forth a newe treasure of wordes vnto the world, when the workes of so honorable and learned men, who haue laboured in this kinde, are so learnedly penned, and highly esteemed. In truth I must, and doe most willingly cõfesse, that neither in age, witte, learning, or experience, I am to be cõpared with the least of them, nay vnfit to carie the bookes, where some of the honorable learned should read the lecture; whose learned labours haue yeelded these manie yeares to England great profite. Yet notwithstanding, considering the great vtilitie of a Dictionarie, whose matter is manifold, and vse general, and also that no one Dictionarie, as yet extant, hath the English before the Latine, with a ful Index of al such latine words as are in any one common Dictionarie amongst vs: and also because the poore estate of most students is not able to furnish themselues with al such Dictionaries, their seuerall prices amoũting to so much; and also weighing the great want that poore scholers haue in not having most, or al of the common Dictionaries: I haue thought it good therefore for thy benefite, courteous Reader, to epitomize and contract the learned workes of al the learnedst and best Dictionaries in England, with vs now extant, into a lesser roome, reducing al those learned Volumes into a portable Enchiridion, & into so great treasures to cast, for thy vse, some smal mites of mine owne, which amount to 4000. wordes more then any one Dictionarie nowe extant affoords. Which I haue done not without great paines and charges: which heauie burden of charge, if it had not bene supported by the Right honorable, my very good Lorde, the Earle of Sussex, and the Right worshipfull Master William Waade Esquier, one of the Clarkes of her Majesties most honourable privie Counsel, with other of my good loving Parishioners of Bermonsey neere London, & good friends in and neare Banburie, it might haue bene said of me, as it was of the foolish builder, This man began to build, but was not able to make an ende. But at last, though long, by Gods prouidence, it is come to this issue, that I must present it (howsoeuer it be finished) to thy courteous viewe & friendly censure: requesting thee to reproue with judgemẽt charitably, what I haue overpast, in haste: In recõpence whereof, I wil be no lesse willing to reforme, then thy courtesie to admonish. Thus assuring my selfe, that thou, learned reader, wilt my faultes escaped, either with thy pen correct, or in courtesie conceale: Remẽbring that the first shadowes of yõg painters maie haue some blemishes, & first editions of yõg writers, (yea & best works) some faults. I commit thee, gentle Reader, to his tuition, that must present both thee and me faultles, in his owne righteousnesse, before the great Iudge at the comming of our Lord Jesus Christ. From Oxon. this XXX. of September.

Thine to his power,

IOH. RIDER.

Directions for the Reader.

IN the Engliſh of every word I obſerue vſually this order. Firſt I put the verbe (if it haue any) the the participle, after the Nownes ſubſtantiues, and adjectiues, and laſtly the Adverbs.

In the Latine vnder the Engliſh I generally obſerue this order. Firſt I place the proper Latine word vnder the figure of 1: then the figuratiue or tranſlate vnder the figure of 2: and laſtly thoſe that be obſolete, or words out of vſe, vnder the figure of 3.

Theſe words that be old and out of vſe, I put them downe, not that in writing any Latine exerciſe, having other choice, thou ſhouldſt vſe them: for to prevent that, I brand them in the forehead with the figure of 3. But when thou readeſt them in their ſeveral authors, thou ſhouldeſt be eaſed of a farther toile, in knowing here their ſignifications.

This note alſo, that when you ſee this v. or this word vide it ſendes you to ſome ſuch place there named, where you may finde more concerning that title, or word which you looke for.

Note where after any Latine nowne you finde m. it ſignifieth the maſculine gender, f. the feminine, n. the neuter, com.g. the common of two gender, and p. a participle, a.l. for adjectiue, adu. for adverbe.

Note alſo that when the verbe, noune, or participle, alphabetically followe not together in one place, as buie and bought ſing and ſong, &c. then if you finde not the Noune or participle in his place Alphabetically, nor any reference from thence with this common note vide, looke then vnder the verbe, as Buie, Sing, &c.

Alſo if you finde not the word you ſeeke for preſently after one ſorte of ſpelling, condemne mee not forthwith, but conſider how it is vſed to be ſpelled, whether with double or ſingle letters, as Chappell, or Chapell: and alſo when i, and y, are confounded, if you miſſe the word in the one place, take a little paines to turne to the other, as in this word boile, and boyle, for example.

Alſo after my firſt Dictionarie, I haue added certayne generall heads Alphabetically placed: viz. of Birdes, Colours, Dogges, Fiſhes, Hawkes, with theire proper termes, Herbs, Nombers, Stones, Trees, Weightes. And alſo I haue added Calendarium Romanum, wherein I haue for the benefitte, of yong ſtudents, and ſcholers, ſhewed the vſe of the Calends, Nones & Ides, by comparing our Calender with it. Where they may plainely ſee how to date their Epiſtles by Calends, Nones, and Ides, as it was vſed in Tullies time.

Now therefore (gentle Reader) looke not to finde in this Booke every thing whatſoever thou wouldeſt ſeeke for, as though all things were here ſo perfect, that nothing lacked, or were poſſible to be added hereunto. But if thow maieſt onelie finde here the moſt wordes that thou needeſt, or at the leaſt ſo many as no other Dictionarie nowe extant, hath the like: Take then, I ſay in good part this my ſimple worke.

For ſuch wordes as you doubt to be falſe printed in the firſt, turne to the Secõd Dictionarie, and there you ſhall finde them to be true: yet, I praie thee, amend theſe faults with thy penne in the firſt Dict. Col. 1520, 3. for vntimely death, reade birth: and in the Second Inſimulatio, for Inſinuatio.

Directions for the Second Dictionarie.

Firſt you haue the word declined at large as far as it is needful, thẽ the Quãtities of Syllables accẽted, though not ſo plaine as I could haue wiſhed: but the fault was not in the Printer, but in the founder that Caſt them.

You haue alſo the Derivations, Etymologies, Affinities, and Differences of many hundred words, gathered forthe of Martial, Iſidor, Tardivus, and other good Authors.

And alſo for the vſe of Courtiers, Lawiers, Apprentices of London, Travailers, and al Diſcõtinuers, whoe haue loſt the vſe of their Grammar rules by diſcontinuance, I haue for their ſakes, put to moſt verbes that be governors, ſuch Caſe, or Caſes after them, as the verb governeth. As gen. for genitivum. Acc. for Accuſativum. Dat for Dativum. Abl. for Ablativũ. And if it governeth a doble Caſe I giue it a doble example, to ſhewe the vſe of it: which Examples you ſhall finde moſt of them in the learned and laborious worke of the right reverend Father in God, my Lord Biſhop of Winton.

Note alſo that whereſoever you find this Capital letter C. it ſtandeth for Cicero.

Alſo when you would know the Signification of any latine woorde that is in the Index, or ſecõd Dictionarie, marke what figures be vnder that woord, for the Firſt figures ſhew the Colume, & the next the Line of the ſaide Colume, where you ſhall ſee that woorde you ſeeke for Engliſhed.

I pray thee (Courteous Reader) think not that I penne this for the learned, but for the vnlearned: if otherwiſe thou takeſt mee, thou miſtakeſt me. Yet if the learned will aford me as much favoure, as the courteous Lion did the poore mouſe, which was, to lye in his denne, ſo this my worke in his ſtudie: it may bee, that ſometimes from a ſnare it may (to requite his courteſie) deliver him.

Thus hoping that the learned will friendlye accept this woorke, in reſpect of my paines, and the vnlearned in reſpect of their profitte, (not doubting of the friendly entertainement that my worke ſhall haue with the Schole-maſter & his ſcholers, becauſe it wil eaſe the one, and profit the other) I end, committing thee to the tuition of the Almightie.

ADeſte tyrunculi, ad Muſas currite: nam moleſta & longa via ſtudendi (quæ vobis in limine metum injecit) tollitur. Breviſsimæ vitæ ſtadium, breviſsimũ artis ſtudium poſtulat. Dignus ergò laude is eſt, qui Priſciani tædium, qui Pythagoræ ſilentium ſuſtulit. En Bibliothecam, & quaſi gazam vobis offert Riderus Anglus. In qua, non ſolum literas, ſyllabas, dictiones Anglolatinas, ſed etiam claſſes, regulas, & ſyntaxeis breviter & ingenioſe docuit. Nam præter alphabetum, & ſylvam verborum, florem illum, Anglicanæ grãmatices ſcriptorem, Lilium, hic cortex, hic codex redolet. Non eſt quod mireris (erudite lector) Auctorem multas in hac ſylva ſpinas, id eſt, permulta in hoc opuſculo verborum monſtra (quæ barbaras dictiones nominat) intriviſſe: quippè apud Oratores iſtiuſmodi (lapide Philoſophico, hoc eſt, ingenio & arte perpolita) auream ſpeciem, ſonum & ſenſum habent: vt, Lentulitas & Appeitas apud Ciceronem. Adeſdum ergo Papiri ingenioſe puer, adeſte tyrones, emite multos in hoc vno libello libros: diſcite in eo rerum ac verborum pondera, authoris induſtriam approbate. Ab ędibus meis Oxonij, xxx.
